—◆ The Building

The building that once housed the workshops that tied the loaves of the Royal House, owes its name to this past, which is evidenced in all corners of the property.

According to the report of a typewritten document, searched at the Olissippo- nese Library of Studies, this building was the former dwelling of a marquee founded by the Marquis of Pombal to tin the dishes of the Royal House - "the doors each had a royal crown and the next couplet: Officina da RealCasa ".

All the pieces, tools and instruments that give name to the apartments were in use in the former Officina Real that existed in the place, being now valued and exposed, returning the Alma to this patrimony.

In total there are 11 T1 and T1 Mezzanine apartments.

The apartments are decorated, furnished and equipped, integrating all the facilities to provide an unforgettable stay to its guests.
